

Marshal Wants U.S. To Return To Fundamentals

"What this country needs is a good five cent cigar," remarked Thomas L. Marshall to John C. Crockett, chief clerk of the U. S. Senate. This famous remark, though uttered in jest, has become almost a fixed part of the American cant. It was paraphrased by Franklin P. Adams, also facetiously, when he said, "What this country needs is good five cent nickel."

These two remarks, though made in jest, each contained a certain amount of truth. But, if we can be allowed to go to the sincere from the jest, we would be inclined, seriously, to state it thus:

"What this country needs, indeed, is a return to fundamentals; to be returned, if you please, to the citizens, who pay for it, live in it and are required to fight for it." America for Americans. All Americans, not these Americans or those Americans, but Americans. White Americans, Black Americans or any other shade as long as they are Americans. Poor Americans, Rich Americans, Union Members, Non-Union Members, Laborers, White-Collar Workers, Businessmen, Bankers, Doctors, Lawyers, Merchants, Chiefs, all classifications, but NO CLASSIFICATION.

Civil Rights, Yes; Special Privilege, NO; The Constitution & its Bill of Rights, Yes; The interpretations of Jurists, selected for political leanings, NO; American Principles, Yes; Dictation by Marchers, Mobs and Pressure Groups, NO.

Repeating what we need is a real revival of Fundamental Americanism, where we are taught from childhood to revere and respect the sacrifices and deeds of our founding fathers and the provision of our Constitution; to appreciate the personal liberty and National freedom established by all of these.

We need again to return to the Motto used on our coins and other documents, "In God We Trust"; to the belief that we should ask God's blessings upon all of our undertakings. We need to have our clergy stay in the pulpit and preach and teach the book of whatever denomination he may espouse; to avoid the love of salutations in the Market Places (Mark 12:38) and the leading down the highway of hordes who would influence our lawmakers by a threat of violence.

We need the teachers in our schools to create the images of Patriotism and Loyalty to our Government; to teach our children the facts of the establishment and birth of our Nation, of the history of which we should be so proud. We need parents who will advise our youngsters and teach them discipline and to respect the rights of others. Parents to create an image of morality and rectitude of conduct and self-respect that the youngsters may emulate to their own good and the health of our Nation.

Right is still right and wrong is still wrong. Truly, we need to recognize the fundamental truths that guided the founders of our Nation established our freedom, or truly our Nation will be destroyed from within, as has been predicted by our enemy and the freedom we now enjoy will be ours no more—The Masonic Home Journal, Masonic Home, Ky.

Soil Stewardship Week

"To Each Among Us—A Share" is the theme for Soil Stewardship Week, May 3 through May 10 this year.

Denver Miriand expanded on this theme by quoting from the 1964 Soil Stewardship Booklet published by the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, "Consider your share—in the great society of mankind, each of us has a God-given purpose for being. In our time each among us fulfills a mission in the long progression toward the ultimate design of our Maker."

"To each of us, God has assigned a share in the expanding brotherhood of stewards. It is a membership of service, dedicated to the husbandry of lands and waters, forests and ranges, and fish and game He has placed at our disposal."

"Soil Stewardship Week—a period designed to emphasize man's responsibility as steward of our God-given soil and water resources—a time to focus attention on the kinship between man's spiritual stature and the soil and water resources on which his life depends—has been observed for many years," Mr. Miriand said.

Soil Stewardship Week ties in with Rogation Days, observed for centuries to "implore the mercy of God that He may keep us from all evils of soil and body and give the plants of the field an increase."

Shortly after World War II the publishers of FARM and RANCH magazine fostered the idea of observing Soil Stewardship Sunday each year. Other magazines and newspapers and radio stations soon joined in the idea, as did many ministers of the Gospel who preached soil stewardship sermons at this particular Sunday.

Then, 10 years ago, the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, the organization representing the 3,000 soil and water conservation districts in every state in the U.S., became the co-sponsor with American churches of what we now call "Soil Stewardship Week." This year marks the celebration of the tenth consecutive Soil Stewardship Week.

Nancy Turpin is the secretary of the Physical Education Club, Student Assistant to the Dean of Women, and was this year's homecoming queen at Cumberland College. Miss Turpin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Turpin of Pineville, Kentucky.

publican's Club, and is a member of the National Education Association and Engineers Club. Mr. Lawson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. LaFord Lawson of Williamsburg, Kentucky.

When asked of their newly bestowed honors, Mr. and Miss "It is a great honor, and we are overjoyed at being selected by our student body."

Red Cross Disaster Teams Aide Quake Victims

In the wake of shattering earthquake and seismic sea waves, Red Cross disaster relief teams were on the job in Alaska and California. Easter Sunday found Red Cross relief operations continuing in three widely separated parts of the country: Alaska, California, and the Ohio River Valley.

Headquarters for American Red Cross relief operations following Good Friday's earthquake and tidal waves was opened in Anchorage, in the YMCA building, where 34 Red Cross staff are now based. Arrangements have been completed with the Alaska Air Command to fly Red Cross relief teams to Cordova, Seward, Kodiak, Valdez, and other parts of Alaska to see what help is needed by people affected in those areas.

In Crescent City, California, another Red Cross team worked through Easter Sunday providing food, shelter, and other help for disaster-hit families, victims of the earthquake-caused tidal wave. Eleven Red Cross staff have been assigned to Crescent City where relief headquarters is located in the Veterans Memorial Building. Red Cross nurses are assisting public health authorities with immunization necessitated by water spoilage.

Following initial aerial survey and stopover in anchorage, American National Red Cross vice president, Robert F. Shea, said that the heaviest damage appeared to be in business and industrial areas. Death tolls, he continued, are still uncertain pending reports from isolated coastal villages.

Fourteen Red Cross staff members have been assigned to Seattle where some 30,700 welfare inquiries from anxious relatives and friends have been received. Disrupted communication facilities will delay replies.

Chapters are advised to accept contributions; however, acceptance of clothing offers are impractical due to the cost of shipping and time delay. There is an ample supply of used clothing much closer to where the need exists.

In commenting on disaster reports received from Alaska, California, and Ohio, Truman Solverson, Eastern Area manager said, "there has never been a better time for neighbor to help neighbor, for people to touch one another across the country with compassion. And, never," he continued, "has there been a more appropriate time for people to give to the American Red Cross than now. We can't all go to Alaska, California and Ohio, he said, but everyone can contribute to their local Red Cross campaign."

Chapters currently conducting separate March campaigns and federated chapters having supplemental campaigns should exert every possible effort in bringing this information to their communities. The American people are generous. If they know our story... if they relate Red Cross activities in disaster areas to the campaign now being conducted in your community... and if they are asked to give now - they will respond! Emphasize the fact that funds are needed to replenish the dollars now being spent.

Meanwhile, 200 Red Cross staff and numerous volunteers are still on duty with the Ohio River Valley Flood operation, where some 25,000 families were affected by floods earlier this month in the states of Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania. Already $750,000 has been expended and the final cost estimate of the relief operation is expected to run more than two million dollars.

Hot Potato Salad for Gourmets

Hot potato salad, everybody's favorite the year around, can be as sharp or as mild flavored as the cook wishes it to be, but it should be so good-tasting that it could serve as a main dish.

Gourmet Potato Salad could be served as a main dish. It is piquantly flavored with bottled oil and vinegar dressing (use the Italian one for sharper flavor) and smooth, good-tasting, Miracle Whip Salad Dressing, which combines the best qualities of rich mayonnaise and old fashioned boiled salad dressing. The two dressings coax the sliced potatoes, flavoring vegetables, eggs, and cooked bacon to delectability in very little time.

Like all hot potato salads, Gourmet Potato Salad appears and tastes best when served in the same skillet in which it was made — no extra tossing and transferring is done to destroy the beauty of each ingredient, and the salad stays warm until every last portion is served.

Accompany the salad with frankfurters on buns and tall glasses of iced tea, if you wish, or serve it with a platter of sliced cold meats and cheese and hard rolls for a pleasant supper menu.

Woodrow Fugate Family Named Family Of The Year By P.T.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Fugate and children Allen, Lois and Carol were honored Saturday, April 18th by the Tenth District of Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers during the Spring Conference as "Family of the Year". The Fugates were selected by the Hazard PTA as their "Family of the Year" and presented with a book entitled "Run Me a River". Mrs. Joe W. Duncan, President of the local PTA, made the presentation during the luncheon meeting.

Mrs. Norman P. Cornett on Radio Operators Association in behalf of the Tenth District presented Mr. Fugate with a silver bowl.

The Fugates were selected on the activities of the family as a whole, not only in the affairs of the school, but the church and community as well. Mr. Fugate is employed as a radio technician for the Kentucky Power Company and had previous radio experience as a radio man during World War II in the U. S. Navy. He is a licensed amateur radio operator and is head of the Amateur

He is very active in scouting and is recognized as one of the outstanding scouting leaders in the Kentucky River District. Mr. Fugate also holds the office of Secretary of the Hazard PTA at the present time.

All members of the family are members of the Hazard Christian Church where Mr. Fugate serves as a deacon, chairman of the property committee, secretary of the official board and choir member. On his off duty days and holidays, he can usually be found working around the church.

Besides maintaining a household, Mrs. Pearl Fugate is a Sunday school teacher, circle leader and a member of the Christian Women's Fellowship. She is very active in youth work in the church and serves as a worker in various other organizations in the community.

The children are members of the church choir and very active in the youth groups. This family is composed of dedicated Christians who are taking their places of responsibility in the church, the community and the school.

The coffee hour from 9:00 A.M. until 10:00 was in charge of the Hazard PTA, the host unit.

Rev. Robert Yates, President of the Jackson PTA gave the devotional, which was followed by the Pledge of Allegiance and the singing of the National Anthem. Mrs. Joe W. Duncan, President of the Hazard PTA and Mr. Estill McIntyre, Principal of the Roy G. Eversole School welcomed the guests, and Mrs. O. E. Harris, Jenkins gave the response.

Mrs. John W. Jarrell, 10th District President presided at the business session, during which a report of the nominating committee was given by the chairman, Mrs. James L. Kidd of Campton, and Mrs. Norman P. Cornett, past president of the Hazard PTA, Publicity Director and chairman of the Headquarters Building Fund for the 10th District, was elected president to succeed Mrs. Jarrell. Mrs. Paul Keeton of Jackson was elected First Vice President.

Short reports on the years accomplishments as well as plans for the future were given by presidents of local units. The conference theme "Face to the Future" was presented by Mrs. Jarrell who stated that we must face the future with courage and faith, as well as the concern for the welfare of all children. We must do the things TODAY that we want to do to show children what is expected.

Jimmy Lynn Maggard Selected As Winner of Citizenship Award

A "World Atlas" was presented to Jimmy Lynn Maggard, a student at the Roy G. Eversole Elementary School at the luncheon meeting of the Spring Conference of the 10th District of Parents and Teachers by Mrs. Joe W. Duncan, Hazard PTA president, for having been selected as the recipient of the Citizenship award. Jimmy is the son of Mrs. Minta and the late Earl Maggard, and the following was written on his being chosen for this outstanding award.

He has distinguished himself as a deserving citizen at the Roy G. Eversole Elementary School, and has willingly continued to serve as a patrol boy at our schools since about the fifth grade level, has been active in scouting and participated in many youth activities at the local Christian Church.

He has always conducted himself in a gentlemanly manner, never hesitating to avail himself whenever and wherever needed. These courtesies have not always been confined to the school alone, but frequently have been displayed in numerous community situations.

Good citizenship is not governed by scholastic ability, but, rather, embraces many characteristics which would indicate the development of an all-around personality which has a sensitivity to the needs of others and the potential of becoming a future adult community-minded individual.

We would not claim perfection for Jimmy in all areas of these characteristics, but we would hesitantly award to him the distinction of having many outstanding traits which cause his teachers, as well as fellow students, to see him as a person worthy of receiving the citizenship award for this year.

He gives an excellent presentation on Education in Russia as compared to Education in the United States.

Mr. Watson Webb, President of the Schoolmasters Club, invites all school administrators, supervisors, and teachers of the UKREA district to be present to hear Dr. Wilson.

UKREA Club To Meet April 28

The Upper Kentucky River Education Association Schoolmasters Club will have its next meeting in Whitesburg on April 28. This will be a dinner meeting and will be held at the Coffey House at 7:00 p.m.

Dr. O. J. Wilson, Assistant Executive Director of the Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc. will be the guest speaker. Dr. Wilson has visited in Russia and has many interesting slides depicting life in Russia. He gives an excellent presentation on Education in Russia as compared to Education in the United States.

Our Hospital Crisis

Although the public seems blissfully unaware of it, medical and hospital service to the people of the Hazard area is at perhaps its most crucial crossroads in all its stormy history. Decisions will be made and actions taken in the very near future, perhaps by mid-summer, that will affect and possibly determine the entire future course of medicine in this region.

The crossroads has been reached because of these factors:

The old Mount Mary Hospital on High Street, operated by the Benedictine Sisters and for many years the center of medical treatment for thousands of mountain people, has become so obsolete and aged that it is woefully inadequate to the needs of the people, and to the kind of service the Sisters desire to provide. The Sisters must find a better hospital in which to work. They are now looking.

At the same time, Hazard's second and newest hospital, Hazard Appalachian, formerly the Miners Memorial, is also in the throes of change after its former operator, United Mine Workers of America, was forced to get rid of it and nine others like it because they were too expensive for the Union to operate. Since the Union withdrew its support, Hazard Appalachian, along with four sister hospitals that make up the chain called Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc., has needed a state subsidy to stay in business and it is presently still suffering from acute financial difficulties and a resulting limited medical staff.

With each hospital at its own individual crossroads, here is what each is trying to do to protect and preserve its own future:

Mount Mary wants to build its own new hospital, right here in Hazard on a lot adjacent to the present building, soon to be cleared and prepared as an urban renewal project. The plans have been drawn, the cost of the new 60-bed structure set at $1,600,000. The Sisters have access to $400,000 of their own money, and are looking to the federal government for the remainder. But, according to attorneys representing the Sisters, the federal government is in no hurry to help Mount Mary until the possibility of combining it with Hazard Appalachian is explored. So the Sisters now have their plans, their lot, $400,000, and the desire to build their own hospital but must find $1,200,000 from another source before they can proceed.

Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc., has invited the Sisters to assume managerial control of Hazard Appalachian rather than build its own new building. The Sisters have expressed an interest in this arrangement on a lease basis, or some other arrangement that would allow them to operate independently of the chain. With the chain, cool to this idea, discussions of a possible merger between the Sisters and Hazard Appalachian are presently at an impasse and the Sisters are continuing efforts to raise money for their own new Mount Mary.

This summary of the state of affairs of Hazard's two hospitals is outlined here in an effort to arouse greater public interest in this most vital situation. We would venture these general observations as food for future public thought:

1. The Hazard area will be served better by one well-staffed, completely equipped, ultra modern hospital behind which the entire region could pitch its enthusiastic support, rather than two in competition. This opinion is shared by both present hospitals, and the federal government.

2. Hazard would be served better by a strictly Hazard hospital, with no ties to other cities in the mountains. A Hazard hospital would rise or fall on its own merits alone, and not because of influencing factors in other communities. There is little doubt that a large, 200 bed hospital could flourish here in Hazard, surrounded as it is by many thousands of people who consider Hazard as their medical center.

3. Private enterprise is better than public enterprise in the hospital business, as well as any other kind of business. That is, a strictly Hazard hospital, operated by a private organization such as the Sisters, is more in keeping with the American way of individual and community effort than great, corporate-controlled systems. The federal government says it considers the Appalachian Hospitals as an "experiment" to see if a chain of hospitals can operate more economically than one local one. The United Mine Workers have already tried that experiment and it didn't work.

Obviously, concessions from both sides must be forthcoming before the question can be resolved. It is too early now to predict just what the outcome will be. But whatever it is, it should be based on one consideration, and one only: to obtain the best possible medical service for the people of the Hazard area, at the cheapest possible cost. And to deserve that kind of medical treatment, the people of the Hazard area must realize that they each have a personal stake in this great issue; they must each assume a personal sense of responsibility by showing an aroused interest in it.

For, as the old saying goes, you don't miss the water until the well runs dry.

Herald-ings

By Martha M. Nolan

No doubt you have noticed the absence of Heraldings for the past week or so. We have had eye trouble, and have had to let up on reading, etc., somewhat. Why, we even went fishing for a week and couldn't see how to catch even one little fish. However, we are glad there has been some improvement, and we hope to be around for quite a spell yet.

This past week we had the pleasure of going to the new lodge at Buckhorn, and getting a birds-eye-view of things to come in the way of recreation for this area. The lodge, we understand, will probably be dedicated in June of this year and we must say Perry Countians and their visitors are going to be elated with facilities there. The kitchen alone will be a dream boat in itself. The Chef will even have his own private office, with the kitchen being the last word in modern electrical appliances.

Corbett Brown, the affable fellow whom everybody knows as "Corb", said: "This is supposed to incorporate the last word in modernity, and is the latest thing in Kentucky."

We had dinner at the trailer home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Waggoner, and she was assisted by her neighbor, Mrs. Lonnie Skaggs, and right away it was apparent that these two homemakers were quite plain good Kentucky cooks. We spent quite some time after the dinner touring the lodge with the ladies and in general just plainly enjoying the beautiful scenery and fresh air coming from the lake.

Johnson Construction Company of Ashland are the contractors. The new road will be blacktopped before the lodge opens.

OUR READERS WRITE

Quake Victim Writes Home.

(A graduate of Dilce Combs High School, Mrs. Victoria Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Brashear of Viper, was in Alaska during the recent earthquakes and tidal waves that devastated the state. In the letter to her parents reprinted below, Mrs. Spencer gives a graphic account of her impressions and experiences during the disaster).

What follows are excerpts from Vicky's letter of fear, befuddlement and finally relief that she, Lawrence and their dog Sam escaped unscathed from the quake which took at least 17 lives and demolished the town of Kodiak, where Lawrence has been stationed with the Navy the past two years.

Larry and I were driving to the enlisted men's club and we thought we were losing a wheel on the car—and then it felt like three flat tires until Larry stopped and said "Vicky, it's an earthquake!"

"It lasted a full five minutes. It is horrifying to feel the ground moving under your feet. The tidal wave that followed was the worse thing though. The quake was at 6 P.M. and the tide came at 7 p.m."

"It covered cars and warehouses, went through the airplane hangers and just went on and on—it looked like slime just creeping into everything. The roads in lots of places were covered and three or four buildings went back to sea with it."

Partially devastated Kodiak was one of the areas hit hard with at least seven dead, 14 presumed dead, and two injured. Several buildings collapsed and fishing vessels were washed up into the heart of town.

The Spencer's managed to make their way to the E. M. Club, which situated on a hill, put them out of the reaches of the tidal waves. Later they made it back to their home to find lamps, mirrors shattered on the floor. The little dog Sam, scared and shivering, was safe.

They were luckier than most. Vicky is employed in Civil Service Work and has been working for sometime. Her Bosses son and a companion were drowned. Several of her friends and neighbor lost their homes to the quake and many others were forced to high ground.

Her letter was written over a period of days. On March 28 Vicky wrote: They say in any quake that the first tremor is the worse and the rest are after effects. We averaged a tremor every 20 minutes last night and you can believe me when I say it's the most helpless feeling in the world.

The tremors stopped in Kodiak March 29 Vicky wrote. She continued: "We are lucky to have such a beautiful day today. The sun is shining and it is pretty. It is 6 p.m. We're both exhausted from relief work and we still don't have electricity. But I feel thankful I have what I do."

Write us again soon and thanks for the card. I had almost forgotten our anniversary in all the excitement. Love, Vicky Larry and Sam.

The President and Poverty

President Lyndon B. Johnson has said that he will visit Kentucky soon in a swing through the whole Appalachian region on a tour designed to reaffirm his administration's promise that efforts to ease the economic plight of the region will be stepped up on a massive scale.

Four months ago this would not have been necessary. But now it definitely needs to be done. Because with the elaborate Appalachian Development Plan drawn up by a team headed by Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. now gathering dust in a White House pigeonhole, mountain people are wondering if what Roosevelt did wasn't, in reality, "just another survey" in just another election.

Enthusiasm for Roosevelt's ambitious plan to rid Appalachia of poverty was high when it was first announced. The plan was detailed and covered many areas and seemed to be a good one. The most impressive thing about it was that it called for the spending of $4 billion in a recovery effort throughout Appalachia. The plan was begun at the initiative of President Kennedy and carried out with President Johnson's blessing. But since its submission to President Johnson, little else has been heard about it.

The main reason the FDR Jr. plan is out of the limelight is because the LBJ plan is in it. The President's "war on poverty" is quite the thing now, and with the campaign still to come, the country will no doubt hear a good deal more about it.

The proposed "war on poverty" is calculated to attack poverty on a nationwide level instead of a limited concentration on the Appalachian states. We are the first to admit that poverty is reprehensible in an affluent society such as ours, no matter where in the nation it exists, and that any measure to wipe it out is admirable.

But it is also our belief that the best way to solve a problem is to get at its roots, to go directly to the source of the worst of it and deal with it there. Appalachia is the most poverty stricken area of the United States. By making a major effort to uplift the Appalachian people first, the whole nation will benefit more than if the federal resources are scattered piecemeal all across the land.

Of course this is election year and we understand that a million dollars spent as a token in 50 states will influence an election more than a billion dollars spent in an isolated mountain region. This of course is not to say that such thinking is behind the President's nationwide war on poverty. But just to make sure that rumor doesn't start the rounds, it is well that he is coming here to reaffirm his administration's commitment to give Appalachia more than a token boost. At least we hope that is why he is coming.

Nathan Coulter

By Wendell Berry

This short novel was published in 1960 but because it is by a young Kentucky writer and the story takes place on Kentucky soil, it is appropriate to call attention to it again here for local readers.

"Nathan Coulter" is the story of a young Kentucky boy and the conflicts within his family, and himself, as he grows to maturity on a farm in North-Central Kentucky. Narrated in Mr. Berry's precise, disciplined first person prose, Nathan tells his own story of a summer's journey from boyhood innocence to his first new awarenesses as a young man.

In the course of Nathan's journey, the reader comes to know the colorful members of Nathan's family who have helped shape his sensitive and inward character. The Kentucky landscape is also an important influence in Nathan's growing up: the house he lives in, the fields he helps his father farm, the small town nearby, and the Kentucky River that flows through the story and the landscape like a unifying thread.

"Nathan Coulter" was not a large commercial success when it first appeared. But it is a good introduction to the writing of Wendell Berry, who has had considerable success as a writer since he graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1957. His is a name that all Kentucky readers of serious fiction and poetry should come to know.

A native of Henry County, Mr. Berry attended Stanford University on a creative writing fellowship for a year, then stayed at Stanford a second year as professor of creative writing. Afterwards he spent a year in Italy on a Guggenheim Fellowship, where he began a second novel. Back again in this country, Mr. Berry has been teaching in the English Department of New York University. But he will soon return to Kentucky, to become professor of English and creative writing at the University in Lexington.

Mr. Berry is a frequent contributor of poetry to the leading journals and magazines that publish serious poetry. A short poem he wrote on the death of President Kennedy last November will soon appear as part of a hardcover book, illustrated by drawings of one of America's leading artists, Ben Shahn.

Paper Mountains

"Little things are great only to little men." So reads an old proverb. Do you get the meaning? Some people makes mountains out of paper. Every problem is a disaster, every disappointment a catastrophe. To them, there are no cloudless days. Every morning brings a new storm, every night a new tempest. Their bedfellows are fear and suspicion. And terror, self-pity, dread, and despondency. These drain a man's energy. Tissue paper mountains sap his strength. So when a real precipice looms ahead, he is too weak to climb it. No heart is left to charge the sheer granite walls of a real mountain, no guts to brave the blinding snow and ice of its dizzying heights.

The answer? Give yourself to the big issues of life. Ignore the trivial, the petty, the peccadillo. Remember that little things are great only to little people. Don't take that paper mountain by storm—just let the first wind blow it aside.

LIMITS OF POWER

To comprehend a man's life it is necessary to know not merely what he does, but also what he purposely leaves undone. There is a limit to the work that can be got out of a human body or a human brain, and he is a wise man who wastes no energy on pursuits for which he is not fitted; and he is still wiser who, from among the things that he can do well, chooses and resolutely follows the best.

UK Mining Students Practice Rescue Work At Old Allais Mine

by Gurney Norman

The old Columbus Mining Company mine at Allais isn't abandoned after all.

For four decades the source of high-grade number four coal, the large, double-track mine is now used as a unique classroom for the practical training of mine inspectors and mining engineering students.

The latest class to be held in the old shaft, which has been closed for mining purposes for several years, was for a group of University of Kentucky mining engineering students who came to Hazard last weekend for practical training in mine fire control and rescue and recovery work.

The Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals played host and set up the instructional problem for the UK group.

To make the training as realistic as possible, a hypothetical situation was set up to resemble an actual situation in which a mine is hit by a fire, with personnel from the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals as "actors" in various roles.

Wearing elaborate breathing apparatus, UK mining engineering students, who have been formed into simulated rescue teams, get a briefing on what to expect when they go into a "burning" mine. Eight students participated, divided into two rescue and fire fighting teams.

Smoke boils out of the mine and swirls about the rescue team as it is about to enter the mine. The smoke comes from controlled fires set well inside the mine so that students can get practical work in the use of the breathing apparatus they have on.

Henry Hamblin of Harlan, Principal Inspector of the Kentucky Department of Mines and Minerals, portrayed the owner of the burning coal mine. J. H. Mosgrove, Department Safety Director briefed the fire fighting and rescue crews, composed of the UK students, on the nature of the fire in the mine and showed them a map of its approximate location.

As part of the scenario, controlled fires were set well inside the mine, and filled it with dense smoke to add to the realism of the training.

After the briefing, the rescue teams put on breathing apparatus similar to a military gas mask, and filed into the dark mine to find the source of the smoke and extinguish it.

With visibility at times down to absolute zero, the students were dependent upon a life line—a wire previously stretched along the mine floor—to maintain their direction.

Slowly they groped their way underground through the smoke, their oxygen coming solely through their breath devices, until finally they came upon the small fires. They quickly put them out with rock dust and the mine's giant fan soon had the smoke cleared away.

But with the fires out the trainees were confronted with another serious problem: one of their number was stretched out on the mine floor, a simulated some casualty. He was rolled onto a stretcher and carried to safety outside.

The practical work the UK students received at the Allais mine was done to supplement a regular course in Mine Rescue and Recovery under Associate Professor of Mining Engineering W. H. Roll at the UK Campus in Lexington.

Bureau of Mines inspectors who had parts in the skit were William Wright, Clarence Powell, Everett Barlett, Albert Alexander Jr., and Paul Sexton all of Hazard. These men acted as leaders of the rescue teams and as safety personnel for the training exercise.

The United States Bureau of Mines also had men on hand for the training in T. R. Mark of Harlan and George Luke, of Hazard.

The University of Kentucky students were Douglass Cook, Charles Matherly, Dan Culbertson, Frank Machittl, Dexter Patton, John McIntosh, Doyle Mills and John Kinsler.

Part of the training the UK students received involved caring for one of their fellows who is pretending to be overcome with smoke. His rescue team buddies rolled him onto a stretcher and carried him to fresh air and safety outside the mine.

Disabled People And Dependents May Be Eligible For Benefits

"Disabled? Unable to work? There has been no medical recovery and he shows he can security benefits," says Francis A. McDougal, Acting manager of the Hazard social security district office.

"If you are unemployed because of an illness or accident which will prevent you from working for an indefinite period, you should get in touch with your local social security office," he added.

He explained that the social security program provides cash monthly benefits to disabled people who are unable to work. Inability to work must be a result of a disabling condition; and this condition must be severe enough to prevent a person from being able to engage in any gainful work activity, not just his usual job.

Another requirement is that the disabled person must have worked in covered employment or self-employment for at least five of the last 10 years before he became disabled. If a person is disabled within the meaning of the Social Security Act and has worked long enough, he can receive cash monthly payments beginning with the seventh full month of disability.

Mr. McDougal emphasized that even though benefit payments cannot begin before the seventh month of disability, it is important to apply for this benefit prior to this time so the Social Security Administration can make a decision before the seventh month of disability. By filing early, the first benefit check will arrive on time.

Mr. McDougal also stated that failure of the disabled worker to apply early, especially those disabled over one and one-half years ago, may cause a reduction in the amount of benefits received and, in some cases, loss of all benefits.

In addition, all applicants for disability benefits are referred to the State Vocational Rehabilitation Agency to see if the disabled person can be trained in a new type of job within their capabilities.

Disability payments continue until there is medical recovery permitting the worker to return to work. Even though

Lothair Baptists To Hold S.S. Night Tonight at Church

Tonight is Sunday School Night at the Revival at the Lothair Baptist Church. A count of how many each class brings to the service will be taken. Each class will set a goal.

Tonight Rev. Clifton Courtney, pastor and evangelist will preach on "HOW I WOULD EXPLAIN CHRIST TO SOMEONE WHO HAS NEVER HEARD OF HIM".

Friday Night has been designated as Old-fashioned Night. The congregation will meet upstairs in the new sanctuary for the first time. Kerosene lamps, quilts for the children, testimonies, old hymns, and a quest for the one who has been a Christian the longest will be features of the service. The sermon will be "How to be Saved".

Saturday night is Youth Night in which the youth of the church will participate. The sermon will be youth oriented and entitled "What Becoming A Christian Involves". Sunday services will include sermons on "The New Birth" and "The Grace of God".

The revival will extend through May 3 with no service on Saturday night, May 2. Services are at 7 p.m. each night. The nursery facilities are open.

Expectant Mothers Should Seek Medical Care, Says Health Officer

"Many expectant mothers wait too long before seeking medical care and advice, sometimes with unfortunate results," Dr. Combs of the Perry County Health Department said today. "Every woman who suspects that she may be pregnant should visit a doctor promptly to obtain the benefits of modern medical guidance," Dr. Combs said.

The need for medical care throughout pregnancy and following birth cannot be over-emphasized. We all want healthy babies, and mother's health and peace of mind are essential.

In what ways does a doctor help the expectant mother during pregnancy? As soon as pregnancy is determined by a simple test, the doctor gives an expectant mother a careful physical examination to check her general condition. He answers questions she may have about pregnancy and birth, and every step is taken to ensure a rewarding pregnancy and birth.

The mother-to-be is given instructions on diet, exercise, rest, bathing and clothing. Any fears she may have can be talked over and explained. Usually there need be little if any change at this time in her customary daily activities.

During the first 6 months

she will probably be asked to visit the doctor only once a month. This enables him to keep check on her general condition, blood pressure, pulse and weight, as well as do appropriate laboratory tests.

The doctor also treats possible discomforts such as constipation or morning sickness. He tells her what to watch out for and answers any questions that may be puzzling her. The doctor is also trained and willing to talk over any emotional problems or worries that may arise.

Later on, the doctor listens to the unborn baby's heartbeat and follow the growth progress. In the final month the doctor may want to see the expectant mother more often, perhaps once a week.

He tells her how to prepare for her visit to the hospital what to expect there, and what the birth will be like. He also arranges with the hospital so that everything will be ready for her when she arrives.

With early and continuous medical care and advice, the big day should be a more comfortable and happy one for mother, father and baby.

Ashland Oil Joins American Coke

Ashland, Kentucky—Ashland Oil & Refining Company has joined the American Coke and Coal Chemicals Institute, becoming the first oil company member of the association.

The twenty-year-old Institute, headquartered in Washington, provides a forum for discussion of member problems, and has a continuing program of technical education and information. Membership previously was restricted to producers and processors of coke and coal chemicals, and tar distillers. Recently its interests have been expanded to include manufacturers of petrochemicals.

Kentucky-based Ashland Oil is a substantial manufacturer and marketer of petrochemicals, and is placing considerable emphasis on coal-related research programs.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Gardens Require Good Planning

Paul Keen — County Agricultural Agent

Now is the time to think about soil preparation, correct planting, and cultivation of crops not after they come up.

SOIL PREPARATION

Good soil preparation begins with deep plowing (approximately 10 inches deep). If you haven't plowed the garden this deep in the past, approach this depth gradually by increasing plow depth 1 inch each year until a 10-inch depth is reached. Plow in late fall or winter to insure decay or manure, cover crops, or other forms of organic matter turned under.

Repeat harrowing as many times as necessary to insure a good seedbed. A drag may be used to smooth the seedbed, if needed.

PLANTING

Use a measuring stick for correct spacing between the rows. To make straight rows, pull a string tight the length of the garden. Depth of planting is determined by the crop; small-seeded vegetables such as mustard and lettuce, 1/2 inch deep; large seeded crops such as peas and beans, 1 to 1/2 inches deep; asparagus roots, 6 inches deep; and rhubarb, 4 inches deep. Transplants should be planted 1 to 2 inches deeper than they were growing in the plant bed. Give transplants 1/2 to 1 pint of water at time of transplanting. Apply water before soil is pulled to the plant. Gently firm soil around the transplant.

heavy rains. If you weed the garden while the weeds are small, deep cultivation will never be necessary.

Following harvest of early crops, if the area is not to be used for planting other vegetables, it should be sown to a soil-building crop or cultivation should be continued to control weeds.

We suggest you get Extension Service Cir. 439-A "Home Gardening for Better Living" from your county extension office.

Remember! The best time to cultivate is before the crop is planted. Proper seedbed preparation eliminates much of the hard work after the crop is planted.

We Can't Make Money By using Poor Seed

We know it costs a great deal to raise any farm crop. Then can we afford to run the risk of losing all or part of the crop as a result of using poor seed?

The seed cost is one of the smallest costs in crop production. If we use anything less than certified seed we can't even be sure of what we are sowing. Certified seed adds very little to the cost of producing a crop but it adds immensely to our chance of producing a good crop.

Transplants of tomatoes, pepper, and sweet potatoes may be killed or seriously damaged by flea beetles. Spray with malathion or DDT immediately after transplanting.

CULTIVATION

The roots of most vegetables are shallow and may extend completely across the space between the rows. For this reason cultivate shallowly and often enough to control weeds or break a crust formed following

It took a lady to get two long-time political foes, former Governors A. B. "Happy" Chandler and Bert T. Combs, to agree on a candidate for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Representative in Congress from the 5th District.

Mrs. Frances Jones Mills of Gray (Knox Co.), Ky., is shown filing her declaration papers at Frankfort. Both ex-Governors put their signatures on the line in support of her candidacy.

Signing with Combs and Chandler were 23 Democrat women. Mrs. Mills was the first Democrat woman ever elected from her congressional district to the Kentucky Legislature.

Future H'Makers To Meet April 24

By Sandra Castagnaro
M. C. Napier High

The Pine Mountain District meeting is to be held at Lees Junior College at Jackson, Saturday, April 25th. The theme of the meeting is: "The Role of Future Homemakers in the Family."

M. C. Napier plans to have several delegates attend.

At the April 13th meeting of the M. C. Napier Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America, a skit was presented by Miss Vera Napier and Miss Jackie Overbee on Parliamentary Procedure.

On April 20th, it was decided that all degree point sheets should be in by April 27th. This may make it possible for the girls to receive their degrees before the ending of the school year. The district meeting, new chapter officers, and district officers were also discussed.

Clingehoffer Family Home From Hospital

By W. R. Williston

Attendance at the Christian Church and Sunday School Sunday was 34; the offering was $10.74.

Sunday evening we visited Brother and Sister Milam and had a wonderful meeting for them. We had a large crowd and I think everyone enjoyed the services.

Clarence and Helen Howard will soon be able to move into their new home, but they will still be our neighbors.

Bill Stidham and an ambulance driver from Maggard Funeral Home went to Lexington Friday after Tommy Clingehoffer and his little son, Marshall Lee. Tommy's wife, Billie, is still unable to come home. The Clingehoffers were in a bad car accident the day before Easter.

Our visitors Saturday evening were Brenda and Shirley Baker, and Connie Turner of Whitesburg.

Sunday evening Ted Rinier's daughter, Myrna, and Roy Osborne and his wife, Malvery, visited us.

"Beware of Door-To-Door Salesmen" Advises Power Company Manager

Beware of any door-to-door salesmen with what they call "lightning resistors." This advice comes from A. R. Barber, Hazard division manager of Kentucky Power Company, who said two housewives in a rural area recently were cheated of about $20 apiece.

Mr. Barber said the men sold the so-called "resistors" by telling the women that a law had been passed requiring every house to have such a device after the first of May. Their "resistor" was nothing more than several feet of wire hooked around a knob on the side of the house and connected to a steel rod which they hammered into the ground.

Claiming the "lightning resistors" would cost $89 after May 1, the salesmen offered these devices for $22 in one case and for $17 in the other. Part of the confidence placed in the men was based on their promise to return within a month to see that the device

Buick has a great transmission.

An automobile transmission, we grant you, isn't the most soul-stirring subject on earth. Nothing to look at either.

But if you'd like for your next new car to give you a better break on performance and gasoline mileage, something happened last week to be your guide.

The Los Angeles to New York Mobil Economy Run proved one thing for sure. There's quite a difference in the transmissions of new cars.

Three out of four for Buick

The long-time champion in the transmission league—Buick—walked off with the 1964 economy pennant. No other single make of car won as many events as Buick. Four entries, three winners.

The winning Special carried the new Super Turbine 300 automatic transmission; the LeSabre was equipped with the Super Turbine 400 (both optional at extra cost). They're the latest in a long line of Buick transmissions well known for their smoothness and absence of "shift feel". The Super Turbine is a refined and improved torque converter type to help you safely pass cars and trucks as well as gas stations.

You'll hear a lot about it in the next couple of years as this modern kind of transmission is adopted by more and more car builders.

What about engines?

Of course, an efficient transmission gets more efficient when teamed up with a lean, agile engine. The winning Buick power plants were our new V-6 and V-8. The 300 cubic inch V-8 in the winning Buick Special (the lowest priced of all Buicks) and the Buick LeSabre (the lowest priced big Buick) is like a well-conditioned fighter. All muscle, no fat. Weighs in at far less than other V-8's of similar punch. It took every other V-8 in the Economy Run.

Your type of driving—regular gas. The Run was through cities and towns, across super highways, in traffic, out of traffic. This was not race track driving or proving ground driving. This was your kind of driving—even though you can't expect to get as good mileage as these expert drivers in their finely tuned production cars. The distance was 3,243 miles, about what most families log in four months. All three Buicks used regular gas. So the Economy Run is not just a cross country tour for the Mobil people and a few car buffs. It's a reliable test of a car's power team and what it's able to squeeze out of its fuel.

We don't expect everybody to rush out this week-end to buy a new Buick just because we won a few economy trophies. There are so many other good reasons for leaning to Buick that economy usually gets second billing. There's styling, naturally. An unusually great ride. Extraordinary engineering and workmanship. And very young performance. Small wonder Buick sales are running at 11.5% over last year.

But it's nice to get economy as a plus in a Buick. Beyond the dollars saved on gasoline, there's a certain pride in knowing you have a car that's built to get the most out of every tank of gasoline.

Wouldn't You Really Rather Have a Buick?

Folks blast my hide we are still having some weather, this can be expected, these April showers will bring along the May flowers. Many of you are being able to get a little gardening in between them. I for one have sandwiched my two by four plot in with such plantings as Onions, lettuce, radish, mustard and rape. Speaking of Rape, it is not as bad as it sounds. For some time such old people as Mrs. Vesta Hamilton keeps asking me to get some rape seed, at last I found it a couple of years ago, which goes by the trade name of a Kale, folks it is one of the finest greens you have put down your gullet. Believe me it is out of this world. Speaking of Mrs. Hamilton, the weather is not too far away from being ideal. Because she has ventured out, also has tried a little Pond fishing. If anyone as old as she is can still gad about and make a garden. I can see no reason why many of you younger people don't ask such people as Vesta how she does it. I am confident that she would say hard work, when you work with a possum hunt or a fishing trip sandwiched in.

MANY OF YOU

Fishermen are getting off to an early start, some reports are fine, others run the usual run of mine, some not too good. Fat Lindon, Tolbert Combs, Charles Cornett and Billy Engle had a good trip down Tennessee Way few days ago, they were using doll flies black color with pork rind. I wonder how they came out on this coming primary election that comes up in next month. I asked Fat's did you go fishing with Charlie, he said hell no he went with me. See Charlie lives next door to me. You get a gang of these politicians on one trip, you can bet your bottom dollar they are working on something. I hope they raise their sights for one thing that is flood control. If anything could be of greater issue please let me know what it is. You boys that have ventured below Hyden, Ky., at the low water dam have really been snagging the big ones such as suckers, redhorse and other types of fish. Also a great many fish are being taken in below the new dam right here in the city. Mrs. Sarah Walker that lives near this dam says she is going to try her luck, because she has seen so many big ones pulled out right near her back door. Good Luck to you Mrs. Walker. This is the time of the year to latch on to most anything that swims. Of course you must be like Mrs. Sarah Walker you are going to have to go after them. It is nice seeing people past that seventieth year mark still having an interest in fishing, I think it very nice that we have some water within our city limits that can afford these pleasures to our elderly people. One thing I sure don't like to see is the black water coming down our streams from various coal washing operations. I personally think that the coal industry should have a lot of heart in remedying such, to offer clear waters for people such as our retired ones, and also to the kids that use these waters. Soon it will be swimming time for many kids that will take to our streams for this type of recreation. BLACK WATERS is not fit for the kids to swim in, now since we have the sewer disposal plant in operation in Hazard, I think it is time to get other pollutions stopped. I wonder what excuse can be offered now? We can forget swimming pools, because our streams can offer this, providing that this black water can be stopped. Washing of coal is not too serious a problem, but to use the streams as a solution of their disposal is something else. Our streams can be kept clean and pure, no, it will not hinder the coal industry, but will retard the progress of the next generation.

WE ARE LOOKING

Forward to a certain amount of tourism in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, we are gaining I think a little more each year. With the cooperation of the Coal Industry in helping keep our streams clear, we will see much more I can see no reason why our streams should be polluted with such waster, when our communities such as Hazard, the Queen City of the mountains has been forced to build a disposal plant at a cost of over $800,000. This is from you that pay taxes that have wanted to see the waters of your streams clear again. Why should industry make their waste use of our streams, if Communities are forced to clear their refuge by installing disposal plants. What is wrong with industry in doing the same. Let's call the cards a Spade, or a deuce. Let's face facts, this is what we are going to need industry to come into our area, as well as tourist. The Coal Industry of years ago made us all believe that we could not exist without it. Today we have found out that if they had done what any industry should have done, we would have seen a greater Eastern Ky. today. Yes, a few reaped the harvest. Many more went their way toward the road of no return. That is to their home lands that they loved so well. Forgetting the country where they made their money to educate their children, to support their churches, schools and other civic enterprises, yes to promote their interest in other states and cities, but leaving behind the devastation of their profits for others to suffer from. That is the ones that are left to make the best of what is left here in Eastern Ky. WHO IS TO BLAME?

CLEAN UP TIME

Yes, the program is under way for an all out clean up, this is every ones job, let me suggest to you boys that are fishing on the streams why not take inventory to the stream banks, advise what you think should be done to help clean them up. Maybe many of you had better start at home, I am sure that good wife of yours is going to demand some of your time to this before you can take off on that long awaited fishing trip. So boys get busy this is every one's job, let's see our area a cleaner place for all to enjoy. With the help of all it will not be too big, but if there is some slackers it will mar the beauty of what a few has undertaken. Why not a committee from some of the clubs to make various surveys and recommend to owners of their property of how to improve their surroundings. Many I am sure would welcome such suggestions. In the mean time won't you look over neighbor and see for yourself what you think can be done, to offer a cleaner Eastern Ky. Yes a Cleaner Community in the area where you live. Just don't look upon your own community to get the job done, remember the people that travel our highways are one of the best judges of any area. This I am speaking for myself, as I have formed an opinion of various cities, communities, and towns that I have passed through. I firmly believe that this will hold true to the greater percent of our traveling public. I know that many of you are still trying to get the flood waters of last year cleaned up. I realize that you don't get this done over night. Let's endeavor to do the best you can. You CAN'T give up now, you have had too much to quit now.

S/Sgt. M. G. Fields Completes Course

LACKLAND AFB, Tex.—Staff Sergeant Monnie G. Fields, son of Mrs. Ora V. Fields of Whitesburg, Ky., has completed the United States Air Force Recruiter Course here.

Sergeant Fields, whose previous assignment was at McClellan AFB, Calif., will be the official Air Force recruiter at Bowling Green, Ky.

The sergeant's wife, Jeanette, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim F. Hopkins of 860 Salisbury Ave., Albemarle, N. C.

A graduate of Whitesburg High School, Sergeant Fields entered the service in September 1954.

Sergeant Fields, a highly qualified noncommissioned officer with a wealth of personal experience and background, was trained in 11 areas of study including Air Force classification system, testing procedures and community relations.

The new Air Force recruiter was specifically selected for his ability to present the Air Force properly to young men and women.

VA QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—Will a dishonorable discharge from military service bar a veteran from receiving VA hospitalization?

A—Yes, that is the case.

Q—I am disabled and the premiums on my National Service Life Insurance are waived. When I die will my beneficiary receive the full amount of my policy or will the unpaid premiums be deducted at the time of settlement?

A—Your beneficiary will receive the full face value of your policy. No deduction will be made to cover the premiums you did not pay while the policy was on waiver.

Q—Does the Veterans Admin. furnish medical care to dependents of veterans?

A—No, not as such. Of course VA hospitals will admit anyone when necessary to save a life in a medical emergency. But such non-veterans patients must pay the Government for their care.

Jet-smooth Luxury Chevrolet makes roads feel as smooth as the maps they're printed on

Run your finger over a map and find yourself a place to go. That's a preview of how it feels to get there in a Chevrolet.

We've put what we think is the best suspension system in its class under this great highway performer. A big husky coil spring at each wheel and double-action shock absorbers to soak up bumps. Over 700 sound deadeners throughout the chassis and that spacious Body by Fisher to blot out noise from road and wind.

There's a lot of other Jet-smooth luxury, too. FOR THE GREAT HIGHWAY PERFORMERS

Wide seats with foam-cushioning front and rear. Luxurious wall-to-wall deep-twist carpeting (this year it comes with even the lowest priced Biscaynes). A choice of seven great engines, all precision-balanced for smoother running, with four smooth-shifting transmissions to match. Everything that makes Chevrolet the great highway performer it is.

So get out those road maps. And wherever you go, get off to a good start—during Trade 'N' Travel Time at your Chevrolet dealer's.

VO-ED For A Changing World

Fifteen Hazard Vo. School Teachers Attend K.E.A. Meeting In Louisville

By James Farmer Asher

The National Education Association to advance the interests of the profession of teaching and to promote the cause of education in the United States commends, Hazard Area Vocational School, Hazard, Ky. Four car loads of people left for Louisville last Wednesday to attend the K. E. A. meeting there. The cars (three cars and one pick-up truck) were driven by Mr. Prater (Director) Mr. Johnson (coordinator) Mr. Begley (Supervisor) and welding instructor, John Calatri, who drove the pick-up truck. Eleven of the instructors made the trip as passengers. The groups stayed through Friday. Mr. Prater went on to Chicago on business. He expects to be gone for a week.

It was disclosed during last week's staff meeting that the requests from all departments would run to about a half-million dollars. As of yet, no appropriation has been made. All legislation enacted will be voted on.

I like the staff meetings, they are conducted in a very democratic way. Everyone has a chance to have his say. Out of these meetings come the understanding of what is going on, the progress that is being made, and the plans for the future. Also it gives each individual instructor the chance to show what he has done. This gives a sense of accomplishment and acts as an incentive for more progress.

I talked to my old friend—Damon Jones, for a little while recently. Damon has been with the vo-school longer than anyone else, seventeen years to be exact.

He started teaching Auto Mechanics the same year that I taught welding at the water plant that was 1947. He is now Heavy Equipment Instructor. Damon is a good man, professionally and otherwise. He is taciturn and tends to his business.

Because of so much construction work now there is a great demand for heavy equipment operators so come on in, Damon can handle you.

The new electric appliance repair classes (day and night) are being conducted in the old

Hazard Business College building. I visited the classes there and talked with the instructors, Mr. Rigsby (day) and Mr. Shackelford. The classes were progressing smoothly, the students were working diligently and the instructors were very enthusiastic.

Here is a list of Mr. William L. Rigsby's students: I've not yet received a list from Mr. Shackelford. Shelby G. Adams, Isom; Glen Blair, Jeremiah; Doris Campbell, Krypton; Tommy C. Campbell, Larkslane; Raymond E. Combs, Combs; Thomas A. Halcomb, Careas; Stanley D. Holland, Typo; John M. Huff, Busy; Donald Kilburn, Yeaddiss; Gerald H. Lowry, Combs; George McIntosh, Jackson; Hiram McLeomore, May King; Ollie Short, Jackson; Herman Sizemore, Darfork; William Stacy, Bonnyman.

Now, I would like to use this space and close this article with a tribute to the ladies who work in the office. Mrs. Juanita Gabbard, Mrs. Almeda Ritchie, Mrs. Pat Rader, and Mrs. Patricia Sizemore. They keep the wheels rolling and are always ready to help with extra work, a smile and a cheerful word. They are as essential to the school as the housewife is to the home.

Liberals Scored As Lacking Faith In Free Society

The so-called liberal who campaigns for broad welfare measures and government control was characterized by an outstanding industrialist as "lacking faith in people and our free society."

Speaking at the National Association of Manufacturers' Institute on Industrial Relations, L. C. Michelson, director of public affairs, Republic Steel Corporation, declared: "No contract, no political party—not even an employer—can give anybody a secure job. The business of earning a living does not work that way."

Every tomorrow has two handles. We can take hold of it with the handle of anxiety or the handle of faith.

Coal Washers Main Source of Stream Pollution From East Ky. Mines

On April 27 the Kentucky Pike County, put new disposal Water Pollution Control Commission will complete a series of hearings to help plan adequate disposal systems for coal wastes produced by nine eastern Kentucky coal companies.

Coal washers—machines that remove clay and other impurities clinging to the surface of coal—were found to be the main source of stream pollution from mines located in Clay, Harlan, and Pike Counties, said David B. Sebree, attorney for the State Department of Health, acting for the Commission.

"At various times in the past these companies have been in compliance with the water pollution control laws, but their continued operation over a period of months was unsatisfactory," Sebree said.

"Water samples taken by two sanitary engineers in the area indicated the companies had allowed their disposal systems to deteriorate in various degrees by that time," he said.

Five of the nine coal companies are now operating disposal systems satisfactory to the Commission as a result of meetings and hearings first called by the Commission in November, 1963, Sebree said.

One of the five companies—the Harlan Fuel Company, Harlan County—voluntarily installed $90,000 worth of new equipment in order to recover suspended coal solids. This company is now recovering 40 tons of coal solids a day with the new equipment, in addition to what is being treated by the old preparation plant.

By April 30 disposal facilities are expected to be completed at Blair Fork Coal Company, Perry County, and Sigmon Construction Company, Harlan County.

The Leckie Freeburn Mine,

Sebree said officials of the Freeburn Mine would meet with the staff of the Commission at the Department April 27 to plan a more satisfactory system.

Engineers for the Johnson Coal Company, Pike County, are drawing up a disposal plan to submit to the Commission. The five coal companies now maintaining satisfactory disposal systems to keep coal dust, clay, and other impurities from entering nearby streams are the Ashio Coal Company, Perry County; the Harlan Fuel Company, Harlan County; the Mary Gail Coal Company, Clay County; the Shamrock Coal Company, Clay County; and Smith Coal Sales, Inc., Perry County.

Standard brings you the first new antiknock compound since Ethyl

Methyl

Our new refinery at Pascagoula, now producing the new Standard Methyl gasoline, is America's most modern refinery.

It's a new gasoline discovery! New Methyl* steps up octane performance so effectively that it stops power-wasting knock better than any other antiknock compound. Methyl stands up under extreme temperatures, spreads more evenly throughout all cylinders of your engine. No other gasoline has anything like it! And it's in Standard gasolines (Crown and Crown Extra) ... at no increase in price! Another way that we take better care of your car.

Amazing how little it costs to put a roof over your head

Amazing? Most people are downright flabbergasted the first time they check out a new compact Dart convertible. Pop goes the top. But the price just sits there low and easy to take.

It's even more amazing when you consider all that makes a Dart a Dart. Room, for instance. Size it up with knees, head, elbows, or luggage. You'll find large economy-size room—as much stretch-out and load space as in many standard-size cars. And there's large economy-size power to go with it... from a 170 cu. in. standard Six to an optional gunge-ho 273 V8.

Amazing? You bet. It's what happens when a quality car maker builds a compact bigger and quicker and then tops it off with such good looks.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, external reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dynase)—discovery of a world-famous research institute. This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Properose 119. Berea Reception Honors Bride Elect

Betty Mar Allen, June bride-elect of Ary, was honored at a reception given at Berea on Sunday, April 12, by Miss Ethel Capps, Director of the college's Country Dance Group.

Decorations for the occasion carried out the spring motif emphasized by a centerpiece of spring flowers supplied by Miss Lela Hale, Director of Homeplace. Miss Marie Marvel presided at the punch table serving approximately one hundred fifty guests during the afternoon.

In the receiving line were Betty Mar, the bride-elect, Thomas Little, her fiance, Miss Ethel Capps, hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Everett M. Allen, parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Little of Pleasant Hill, Tennessee, parents of the groom.

Both members of the bridal couple have been full-time members of the Country Dance Group while at Berea, touring the East, the Mid-West, and South America. Miss Capps will honor them further by playing the recorder at their wedding.

Stockpiling Fallout Shelter Supplies

SPOTLIGHTS ILLUMINATE a corner of the huge underground quarry of the Blanton Stone Co. in Frankfort as Civil Defense emergency supplies are unloaded. The quarry, which could shelter an estimated 27,927 people, is the third largest in capacity in Kentucky. The 120 tons of food rations and other emergency supplies stockpiled there are sufficient to maintain the full population of the shelter for a minimum of two weeks. Largest fallout shelter in Kentucky is an underground rock quarry at Tyrone in Anderson County which is stocked to supply 86,000 people. The 696 shelters throughout the state which have been stocked by Civil Defense authorities could house a total of 544,666 people.

Sgt. John Combs In Alert Exercises

Army Sgt. John E. Combs, 24, son of Mrs. Maudie Anderson, 354 Broadway, Hazard, Ky., and other members of the 4th Battalion of the 1st Armored Division's 3rd Artillery participated in Exercise QUICKFIRE, a battalion alert, at Fort Hood, Tex., March 31.

The alert called by Strike Command was the largest ever received by the battalion.

Sergeant Combs, who entered the Army in July 1957, is a wire-team chief in the battalion's Headquarters and Service Battery.

He attended Combs Memorial High School in Jeff. His wife, Helga, lives in Belton, Tex.

Future Appliance Repairman

The wires and parts represent a new future as a small-appliance repairman for John Huff of Busy. Huff is a trainee at the Hazard State Vocational School. The father of three children, he has held many temporary jobs and worked in coal mines until he began training at the Vo-School. (Photo and caption courtesy Courier-Journal)

Bingham Trio To Be In Cumberland

The Bingham Trio will be featured at a Senior Hootenanny at the University of Kentucky Southeast Community College in Cumberland on May 2. The open house and hootenanny is being sponsored by the College of Student Council in order to acquaint high school seniors with the Southeast Community College. The open house will begin at 7:00 p.m. and the hootenanny begins at 8:00 p.m.

The Bingham Trio is made up of Phil Conn, Richard Belando, and William White, they are all former students of Berea College. The Trio is named for Barry Bingham, editor and publisher of the Louisville Journal and the Louisville Times.

The Trio members do all their own arrangements. They include on their show trio numbers, duets, and singles. Their program includes such numbers as "John Hardy," "Michael Row your Boat Ashore," and "All Night Long."

Miss Carolyn Cornett, Student Council President, urge all high school seniors to attend the open house and hootenanny at the Southeast Community College on May 2.

American Motors Announces New Rambler Classic Hardtop Model

American Motors today announced a special Rambler Classic hardtop model as a limited production car which is powered by a new six-cylinder engine of advanced design.

The new two-door hardtop, called the "Typhoon", is scheduled for late-April introduction and will be available by special order through Rambler dealers for a limited time, according to Thomas A. Coupe, automotive sales vice president.

The Typhoon has a new seven-main bearing engine of "oversquare" design which has been under development and testing in a two-year program. Rated at 145-horsepower, the "Torque Command" engine has 232 cubic inch displacement, the largest displacement of any U. S. built six-cylinder passenger car engine on the market. Coupe said.

"Our basic policy on horsepower is unchanged," Coupe said. "We believe in having thoroughly adequate horsepower in our Rambler cars. We still oppose manufacturer participation in racing and in the glamorizing of speed and horsepower through advertising and promotion."

The Rambler Typhoon is a sporty, eye-catching two-door hardtop in a special yellow and black paint combination. The basic body color is "Solar Yellow", providing a striking contrast to the Classic Black roof panel.

Black center areas in the side and rear trim moldings and black finish on the upper, center and lower horizontal grille bars are used as accents. The name "Typhoon" appears on both rear fenders, with "232 Six" medallions in red and blue located on the front fenders.

New hub-spinners on the full wheel discs contribute to the Typhoon's youthful styling. The luxurious interior features black seat upholstery and black carpeting to complement the exterior motif. The full-

In Army Operation

PFC George W. Walton, 25, son of Mrs. E. Dalton, Hazard, Ky., and other members of the 4th Transportation Command's 117th Transportation Company returned to Fort Eustis, Va., April 6 from participation in Operation QUICK RELEASE on Okinawa.

Dalton's stevedore unit supported the operation, landing heavy equipment and supplies from converted victory ships in this air-sea movement of an entire Army brigade task force.

Dalton entered the Army in May 1961 and is a signalman in the company, regularly stationed at Fort Eustis, Va. Before entering the Army he was employed by Hazard City Fuel.

Writer Urges Everyone To Help In County Clean Up Program

By Mrs. Ernest Fritts, Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Gross and the Bascom Smith family spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Maggard and family in Waynesburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Corbett Hogston of Lothair and J. W. Reeves, spent several days last week on a fishing trip.

Mr. James Price of Junction City has returned to his home after several days visit with the Corless Reeves family.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Warren and children of Paris were weekend guests of relatives here.

Mrs. Zola Warren and daughter, Beverly, of Hazard, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Corless Reeves Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Byrd and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Barnett visited in Jackson last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Walker of Louisville and infant son, Kenny, were weekend guests of Mrs. Walker's mother, Mrs. Young.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reeves have been called to Charleston, West Va., due to the serious illness of their granddaughter who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Reeves, former residents of our town.

We welcome the county clean-up program. Here's hoping that some of the residents in our little town that have been using the railroad property for a dumping ground will endeavor to dispose of their garbage in some other way. The L & N property was posted with no dumping signs. Let us abide by such signs and remember the Golden Rule which says to each of us "Treat your neighbor the same as you would have them treat you".

Mr. George McPherson is still on the sick list. George is a World War II Veteran. How many of you veterans that live here have called on him and offered a helping hand? Let us do a little heart searching. Are we our brother's keeper?

John and Doug Adkins, Larry Harvey, and several of our other teenagers, were among the group that spent the weekend in Georgia. The trip was sponsored by the Presbyterian Church in Lothair.

Mr. Dan Byrd is visiting his mother in Ohio, who is critical-ly ill.
